FOCH IN PITTSBURGH, WAR MUNITION CITY

Marshal Sees Factories That Made Shells to Help Him Win.

EXPRESSES GRATITUDE

Views Thousands of Children, Who Give Heartiest of Demonstrations.

GETS TWO MORE DEGREES

Visitor Guest at Big Dinner
Before Leaving to Attend
Burial of Unknown.

By a Staff Correspondent of This New York Herald.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 10.—Before going to the ceremonies at the final internment of the Unknown American Soldier at Arlington, Marshal Foch dropped into Pittsburgh to-day to inspect that section of America which sent to the allied armies more than 50 per cent. of the shells this country made in the war. Before he left the Marshal said there was no reason for any friend of France to worry about America's friendship for her sister republic.

An electric thrill ran through the city with the first announcement that the Marshal and his party had arrived at the Homestead Mills. The streets began to fill with thousands of children, who followed the Marshal and his party along the route of the long parade blossomed into a blaze of waving flags.

And if the historic demonstration for Marshal Foch, here set a new mark in enthusiasm and immediacy of the crowds which gave him acclaim, the tumult was justified in the remarkable flexibility of the man whose presence stirred the people to a fervor as fresh, spontaneous and full as the news of a world triumph won in the first hour of victory.

For the old warrior who commanded more soldiers and more guns than all the armies of Pyrrhus, Cyrus, Caesar and Napoleon combined, thrust his programme to the winds and, carried away by the cheering of such women and children, could not refrain from breaking into words of gratitude at many points in his programme where his part had been played in selflessness.

From the Homestead Mills, Marshal Foch went to the University of Pittsburgh, where his seventh and eighth degrees of doctors of laws were conferred upon him; the first by the University of Pittsburgh and the second by Duquesne University. At Carnegie Library he saw and heard the world's most wonderful organ. Old French classics were played. No speeches were made. The Marshal was not called on to speak. He sat with his eyes closed.

The Marshal then was taken to the Carnegie Institute of Technology, where he was greeted by the cheers of the students. He spoke through an interpreter, saying:

"After all the horrors of war I have seen, it is particularly gratifying to me to be in this centre of American manufacture and of art and of science and to see those things which we have again taken up in the interest of civilization. I congratulate you on being present among the arts and sciences which bring forth this royal march of culture."

Pittsburgh obviously had much more consideration for the Gascon soldier than some of the other cities. His next move was toward luncheon at the William Penn Hotel. After a rest, he went to Forbes Field, where the Pittsburgh Pirates almost won the National League pennant, and there saw several thousand school children, stiff in their starched skirts, bright in their youthful enthusiasm. They cheered him as none of their elders had.

Through all this Gov. Spruill and Mayor Babcock accompanied the Marshal, talking becomingly into the background while the great French soldier answered the applause. At the West Penn Hospital, where gassed and wounded men in wheel chairs were crowded around him, the Marshal stopped to shake each man's hand, adding, through his interpreter, a word of comfort, and then through the doorway, just before he left, he turned and said: "I am glad once more to have been with the men who helped win the war."

Marshal Foch to-night was the city's guest at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel. The affair was given by the Chamber of Commerce and was attended by the leading business and professional men of the Pittsburgh district. The Marshal made only a brief address and then left for the East.

Saint-Saens Celebrates 86th Birthday at Opera

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
Copyright, 1921, by THE NEW YORK HERALD.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—CAMILLE SAINT-SAENS last night celebrated his 86th birthday by attending his own opera "Aegle" at the Opera House. Despite his years, M. Saint-Saens shows remarkable vitality. Last week he gave a private organ recital at the Institute.

Foch dictated the following message to the American Legion:
"It is out of sacrifice and suffering that the greatest things in life grow. No man gave up part of himself in a great cause but that his sacrifice was rewarded a hundredfold in moral and spiritual blessings."
"Our hearts pour out in sympathy to-day to the mothers, wives, fathers, sisters, brothers of those brave soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice in the world war. Our prayers go up in unison for those men, and at the same time we worship their memory."

"Armistice Day, November 11, shall be made sacred throughout the civilized world. It is the day when we think of the noble sacrifice made by the hero dead; of the brilliant record of duty well performed left on the field of battle; of the spirit of patriotism and bravery shown by those who, fortunately, escaped shot and shell."
"On this day let us think only of the great cause for which the Allies fought—a splendid cause, one that led to victory. And in thinking of the great cause for which we fought let us think also of a bond of eternal peace, so that the people of the world may work and rebuild and find happiness in industrial pursuits, with no thought of future conflict."

"God helping, peace will reign throughout the world."

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 10.—The programme for the special convocation at Yale University on Saturday morning, when the honorary degree of doctor of laws will be conferred on Marshal Foch, was announced to-night. The programme will be similar to the one arranged in honor of Cardinal Mercier two years ago.

The prayer will be by the Rev. Dr. Charles Brown, dean of the Yale Divinity School. The commemorative ode, "A. D. 1918" will be rendered by the Horatio Parker Choir, and the New Haven Symphony Orchestra. Marshal Foch will be presented by Prof. George H. Nettleton and the degree will be conferred by President James E. Angell.

The "Marseillaise" will be sung in French and the benediction will be given by the Right Rev. John J. Niles, Bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Hartford.

ANATOLE FRANCE GETS NOBEL LITERARY PRIZE

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 10.—The Swedish Academy to-day awarded the 1921 Nobel prize in literature to Anatole France, noted French author.

Anatole France is the fourth French writer to receive the Nobel prize in literature since its foundation in 1901 by Dr. Alfred Nobel, noted Swedish chemist. The creation provided for annual prizes of about $40,000 each in physics, medicine, chemistry, literature and peace.

Three Americans have been awarded the peace prize—Theodore Roosevelt, 1906; Eltha Root, 1912; and Woodrow Wilson, 1919. Dr. Albert A. Michelson, professor of physics at the University of Chicago, was awarded the prize in physics in 1907. Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research won the prize in medicine in 1912. Prof. T. W. Richards of Harvard University received the honor in chemistry in 1914.

District Attorney.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—A sworn statement by George Glennon, house detective of the Hotel St. Francis, which purports to clear Roscoe C. Brady, said Gavin McNab, chief counsel for Arbuckle, to-day.

Mr. Brady admitted having taken a statement from Glennon several weeks ago, but said that he had so many other matters to attend to that he did not remember the nature of its contents. The statement was of the question and answer type, according to the defence.

The detective asked the girl if she had been hurt. "No," she replied. "I do not know who hurt me," she was asked by Glennon, according to the defence statement.

FURNITURE DEALER, NOT ASSASSIN, LANDRU SAYS

Calls His Transactions With Women Commercial.

VERSAILES, Nov. 10. (Associated Press).—That the relations between Henri Desre Landru, the "Bluebeard of Gambais," who is on trial charged with eleven murders, ten of them women, and his victims were merely commercial—that he purchased furniture and other valuables from them and that then they went out of his life, is the line of defence that has been adopted by the defence. The accused man to-day seemed to have lost some of the assurance he displayed during the first three days of the trial. The jury took a hand in the cross-examination. Three of the jurors in turn brought Landru to realize his position and enlighten the jury and thus save his head.

"I am a furniture dealer, not a detective or an assassin," was the only reply vouchsafed by Landru.

Young Bandits Surprise Proprietor and Rob Safe.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Diamond rings and unset precious stones valued at between $50,000 and $60,000 were stolen from a jewelry store at 713 Sansom street to-day by three young bandits who escaped.

One of the robbers entered the store of Ziegler & Nemirofsky and asked to see a low priced watch. As Ziegler turned to get a tray of timepieces the other two bandits entered, and all three drew pistols. They backed Ziegler, Benjamin Nemirofsky and Ziegler's eight-year-old son into a corner, walked behind the counter and robbed the six foot safe.

St. Louis, Nov. 10.—Two armed men to-day entered the jewelry store of Edward J. Gallant, in the downtown section, forced three employees into a rear room and escaped with jewelry valued at from $35,000 to $50,000.

Six trays of rings, brooches and bar pins set with diamonds were taken.

RED CROSS PRAISED FOR HEALTH CENTRE

Governor Warns of Danger of Paternalism With Too Much Aid From State.

LA GUARDIA WILL HELP

21 Different Agencies Combined
in East Harlem Institution,
Now Opened.

A warning that the State might become dangerously paternalistic if it entered too fully into health activities was sounded yesterday by Gov. Miller at the opening exercises of the East Harlem Health Centre, 345 East 116th street. The Governor said that the establishment and operation of such a health centre, fostered by the Red Cross, will undoubtedly have a wide influence throughout the country and very likely have a direct effect upon Government agencies.

"Whether this community health centre subject is one which is to spread from examples such as yours," said the Governor, "or whether the State is to undertake it, I am not certain. But whatever we do, we have to consider as clearly as we can where the line should be drawn between State effort and individual effort. I think there are a great many paternalistic tendencies which are dangerous to the progress of our people."

The Governor's reference to paternalism in Government health agencies was in answer to statements made at the meeting by Dr. Louis I. Harris, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases of the city Health Department. Dr. Harris stated that in his opinion there was no danger of paternalism in these agencies—rather a danger of neglect on the part of the State in caring for the health of its citizens.

The Governor's views upon paternalism were attacked at the evening exercises by F. H. La Guardia, president of the Board of Aldermen. He promised to do all in his power to foster the work of any governmental agency the purpose of which was to better the health of the people of New York.

The East Harlem Health Centre comprises twenty-one different health, welfare and charitable agencies that have heretofore existed and operated independently in that section of the city. Commenting upon this amalgamation the Governor said:

"It speaks volumes for the people who have thus come together and for the Red Cross, which has inaugurated this movement."

In reply to Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, State Commissioner of Health, who advocated realization on the part of communities of their duty in caring for the health of their people, the Governor said:

"I thought I detected in the pleasure Dr. Biggs expressed in my being here, possibly, if not an ulterior purpose at least a hope—because Dr. Biggs has been dreaming of a State inaugurated health centre movement. Statewide in extent—but it has remained for the Red Cross to take the lead to show how it can be done."
